March 23, 2021 Two Cuban vaccine candidates against COVID-19 have entered the decisive Phase III of their clinical trials. News that has made a whole country happy, strengthened its hopes, strengthened its self-esteem. Cuba is the only Latin American and Third World nation to have reached that rung with a couple of injectable antidote projects and three other candidates in earlier stages of development. A result that unfortunately is practically impossible for the vast majority of the nations of this world. Monetary and exchange unification.
